Purpose

- Can your team achieve success and identify the missing shapes through clear communication skills?
- Successful communication is not just about listening and this training game proves that and much more!
- An ideal communication skills game for training sessions about communication, interpersonal skills, teamwork, cooperation, problem solving, conflict management and remote working.

How It Works

- Six different shapes are repeated in five distinct colours on 30 cards.
- Remove two cards and distribute the remainder between participants.
- Ensure participants cannot see each others' cards.
- They do not know how many cards, shapes or colours the groups has.
- Their objective is to establish this and the shape and colour of the missing cards.
- Can each person describe their shape accurately for the team to notice shape differences? The answer is usually no!
- Assumptions are often made and clear communication and listening skills are required to achieve the correct answer.
- Observe the group interaction.
